Young Men Organize.

The interest which is generally felt in the Catholic Mutual Benevolent association in Denver has led the younger generation to establish a branch found; which will be under the control of the parent organization. It will be known as St. Mary's branch No. 5. Miss The members are all various man your paris known as St. Mary's branch No. 9. The members are all young men, most of them sons of those who have been affiliated with the older council since its establishment here several years ago. The older people will take a personal interest in the welfare of the new council and will aid by fatherly counsel to make it a success.

St. Mary's council No. 9 was opened with a membership of fifty. The roster of names includes representatives ter of names includes representatives of all the old Catholic families, and of all the old Catholic families, and many of the boys who have but recently left school. Their programme will include some social features as well as the church work. The initial reception was held last week at Eliks' hall in the Mining Exchange building. About 200 young people attended. The hall was elaborately decorated. During the evening St. Elizabeth's choir sang a number of selections.

The grand march was led by President William Dolan and Miss Nellie

He said that the meeting tried some horse-play with the Bell company's books, and he would not compromise the association by taking part. When a lot of business men meet and attempt, or propose to attempt, to inspect the books of a company to see why that company cannot compete in the matter of prices with a rival, it is too much boy's play even for the Groceré association, he said. The members approved of Mr. Hudson's attitude for they accepted his report and continued him on the committee.
